

Alex Nazarov

I am an undergraduate Junior Majoring in Public Relations, with a minor in photojournalism. I have varying career goals from travel writing and photography to becoming a business professional in the Public Relations field. I have dream of traveling the world by sea and documenting my experience electronically. I realize my fantasy would leave me in the cold with minimal income, therefore I believe in having a strong skill set in a more professional environment. Before my graduation date I hope to land an internship preferably for a PR agency. Agencies have a tendency to be known as faster paced work environments, which in-turn, generate heavier workloads. I believe this type of environment would be crucial to put me one step closer to my immediate post graduate goal of achieving outstanding job security because of the quality and consistency of my work which always is performed in a timely manner.

Currently I work at Abilities United, a community based organization where I teach children with disabilities, ranging from autism to cerebral palsy, how to swim or improve their ability to physically function. At Abilities United I have taken the leadership role of helping conduct a Safety Task Force which maintains a safe learning and teaching environment for the organizations members. One of the projects which I have been involved in, included, a highly needed update of the swimming pools Emergency Action Plan.

At San Jose State University I am the treasurer of the Sailing Club. My duties include the overseeing of club funds, managing and reporting member dues, the attendance to all meetings, helping schedule and organize events, meetings and fundraisers. Along with being the treasurer, I am also titled fleet captain for my willingness to educate other members on proper safety rules and sailing techniques.

After I gain experience with hands on work in the Public Relations field specifically aim toward writing, research and communication and my graduation criteria is met, I hope to find a desk job which gives the me ability to plan events, write reports, newsletters, speeches and handouts while paying a decent salary. I believe the experience I have gained in working as an instructor for organizations such as Abilities United and The Peninsula Family YMCA along with the strong writing, communication and reporting skills from my college education and hopeful internship brings a perfect candidate to any company or organization.
